

Labour History Society

We have an exciting program of events for members & friends this year.
The first meeting of the year will feature:

Phil Palmer, Secretary of the Ambulance Employees Association of South Australia speaking on

Against the odds:
The survival & influence of the Ambulance Employees Association of SA

Phil Palmer will explore factors that have enabled a small union to not only survive, but thrive in an era of mega-unions. A focus of his talk will be the AEA dispute with St John and the Labor Government in 1987-89, which was crucial to the creation of a professional ambulance service in South Australia. Phil will discuss union involvement in the development of public policy and the important part unions play in the delivery of quality health services to the community.
